KDDI Web Communications Inc. Announces the Launch of corabbit

<https://corabbit.com>

Tokyo, Japan – KDDI Web Communications Inc. is excited to announce the launch of corabbit, a cloud based collaboration tool. The official launch date is from 2:00 p.m. until 3:30 p.m. on October 9th, 2013.

corabbit makes it easy to collaborate between team members, colleagues and clients. corabbit eliminates endless email chains, phone calls, long meetings and provides one central location for communication.

With corabbit, users can individually or in teams, share files, leave comments and preview multiple files at the same time. corabbit supports various formats; including Photoshop, Illustrator, InDesign, Fireworks and many more, eliminating the need for users to convert their work.

corabbit offers two types of plans and both plans have four pricing levels to fit the needs of any individual, group or organization. Additionally corabbit launches with desktop applications for both Windows and Mac. These will give users additional access to their project directly through a folder located on their computer.

KDDI Web Communications Inc. believes corabbit will change the way people work together moving the work they do further into the comfort of the cloud. As it stands corabbit is a one of a kind product in a league of its own with no clear competitors.
